Stages of Children

Children go through various stages as they grow from early childhood to adulthood. Sometimes parents expect too much of their children, and sometimes they do not expect enough.

It isn't easy to be a parent, nor is it easy to know what to expect of a child. How children grow up is something that cannot be taught or written in a book.

But there are some stages of development that are average. Children who are following along in these stages at about these ages are getting along fine. Some books give the different types of stages that children go through at various ages. Please remember that these are only averages. Most children grow and develop in spurts and so may be quite different from these averages, but some general guideposts to help you know what a child should be doing are such as these that follow.

Between birth and one year of age, children develop a sense of trust and security. Any neglect or deprivation of consistent and appropriate love would be a hazard to children achieving their full potential of trust.

Between one and two years of age, children develop a sense of autonomy. Children begin to view themselves as individuals in their own right. They learn that they are separate from their parents, even if dependent on them. A hazard to achieving this would be any conditions which interfere with the children's accomplishments. Too much correction and not enough praise is a hazard at this stage.

Between four and five years of age is the play age. Children develop a sense of initiative and purpose. It is a period of vigorous reality testing. Children imagine that they are adults and imitate their behavior. A hazard at this time is overly strict discipline that inhibits a child's imagination. If attitudes are too rigidly enforced, the children might lose their spontaneity.

The school age years of six to eleven are when children develop a sense of duty and accomplishment. They begin to lay aside fantasy and play and undertake real tasks. They develop academically and socially. A hazard for children here is excessive competition or other conditions which lead to experience of failture too often. Failing too many times could result in a feeling of inferiority.

Adolescents from 12 to 15 years of age are developing their sense of identity. In these years they clarify who they are and what their role is. A hazard at this time is that society may not provide clearly defined roles and standards. In this age group, too, youngsters tend to form cliques which provide a clear role model, but not always a desirable one.

In the years after 15, as the teen weeks were Mary Lee child approaches adulthood, young people develop a sense of intimacy and ability to establish close personal relationships with members of both sexes. Here cultural and personal factors could create a hazard. Young people might develop psychological isolation or form only formal relationships rather than those which are warm and personal.

Parents working with their children have a difficult job, but if they can see that children are developing along these general stages and help them avoid some of the hazards, the children will grow into well adjusted adults.

It is extremely important as we work with children from the early years to teen years to understand and to help the child understand that people are more important than things. As we work together with children, we must realize that they are tomorrow's leaders and that we are investing our time in the quality of leadership that we will enjoy as we become senior citizens.

Have a good week, homemakers!

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Tutty-Nut Bars

Bottom Layer: Mix together thoroughly: ½ cup soft shortening, half butter, ½ cup brown sugar; stir in 1 cup sifted flour.

Press and flatten with hand to cover bottom of ungreased 13 x 9-inch oblong pan. Bake 10 minutes, at 350 degrees F. Then spread with the topping.

TOPPING: Beat well 2 eggs, stir in 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix together and stir in: 2 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.

Mix in: 1 cup moist shredded coconut, 1 cup nuts (chopped). Return to oven and bake 25 minutes more until topping is golden brown at 350 degrees F. Cool slightly. Cut in bars. Freezes well.

This cookie is an excellent one to serve at wedding receptions.

Mrs. Ann Wilcox
Girl of the Year Award

Observes 48th Founder's Day

The Delta Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma held its 48th anniversary Founder's Day banquet on April 28, 1979 at the Meadowbrook Apartments and presented the Girl of the Year Award to Mrs. Ann Wilcox and the Yellow Rose Award to Mrs. Ann Harris.

Welcomed to the meeting were Mrs. Meredith Cooper and three new pledges, Mrs. Nancy Elder, Mrs. Cindy Thomas and Mrs. Sarah Summers. Also present for the celebration were the pledges and members' husbands.

Mrs. Christine Knight, president of the chapter, read a Founder's Day message by the sorority's founder, Walter W. Ross. In short, Mr. Ross stated that Beta Sigma Phi lets a woman enrich that individual image within herself. Beta Sigma Phi is all there for the taking and the giving.

Mrs. Ann Wilcox read a preview of the chapter's history of the 1978-79 year. Some of the contributions the chapter made during the year were Appomattox Fire Dept., and The Appomattox County Rescue Squad. The project now in process is the A. J. Skateworld rental to aid in the Billy Winston cause. The Delta Zeta Chapter makes an annual contribution to the International Endowment Fund which aids in the cancer research, cystic fibrosis research and many other worthwhile causes.

Mrs. Ann Wilcox, "girl of the year" award, has been a member of the chapter for two years and has served as recording secretary and program chairman for the past year. She has been elected president of the 1979-80 club year.

Mrs. Ann Harris, recipient of the "Yellow Rose" award is a transfer from the Xi Gamma Tau chapter and has been elected vice-president 1979-80 club year.

Beta Sigma Phi was founded in 1931 by a man who perceptively recognized the need for women to become more culturally and socially aware of the world around them, and to reach out beyond their domestic domain. Beta Sigma has grown during these 48 years to include chapters in 31 countries and every state in America - over 12,000 chapters filled with 250,000 women.

HOLINESS GOSPEL SINGERS TO SING AT GRAVEL HILL CHURCH

The Holiness Gospel Singers will render a program of music at the Gravel Hill Church in Hurtsville at 3 p.m. the first Sunday in July.

The public is cordially invited to attend. The service is sponsored by Mrs. Millie Berkley.

Associate Deacons Installed at Elon

Mr. David Gilliam and Mr. Ralph Pankey were installed last Sunday evening as Associate Deacons in Elon Baptist Church, Pamplin. These two young men are involved in a year-long training program in which they both serve the church and learn the nature and function of the deacon. The program is called The Associate Deacon Internship Program.

The Associate Deacons are sponsored by two of the church's senior deacons, Mr. Jim Cobb and Mr. Ewart Welch. They will guide and work with the Associate Deacons through various requirements throughout the year.

The Associate Deacons will perform such activities as hospital visitation, communion visitation, and Communion service for shut-ins. They will also be required to participate in worship activities, serve Communion, attend deacon meetings, serve on a committee, and read a required book about the ministry of the deacon. They may participate in the quarterly deacon training sessions conducted by the pastor.

Overall, the year's training is designed to give the new Associate Deacons a practical working knowledge of what it means to be a deacon.

GOSPEL SINGERS TO BE IN PAMPLIN IN JULY

The first Sunday night in July The Holy Gospel Singers of Pamplin will render a program at Gravel Hill Church, Hurtsville at 7:30 P.M., sponsored by Millie Berkley.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Take care of your tires.
At any speed, a tire failure can be hazardous. You have an obligation to yourself, your family and other drivers to prevent tire-failure accidents.
Be on the lookout for possible trouble — cuts, cracks, uneven wear, cupping and inflation problems. Rotate tires every 5,000 miles. Inspect them often; remove rocks, nails or glass that is jammed between tread grooves.
Most important, don't drive on tires you aren't sure of.
